Swish! Suddenly, it's gone again.

Not again. The hat flies off once more.

In front of a double decker bus, riding along and through the gates of Hyde Park, rolling on the grass before stopping.

The hat stops for a moment. The sign reads: Please keep off the grass.

Looking down at the corgi, he uses the dog to help him get the hat and to ensure he follows the rules. Inches away, the wind laughs and takes the hat off again.

Floating on top of a balloon, gliding in the air, balancing on top of a balloon, soaring high above the rooftops,

Higher and higher,

up and up it goes,

further and further

Swish! The hat is gone - again! Landing on the windscreen of a double decker bus, the hat rides along before getting off at Hyde Park and rolling on through the gates.

The hat finally stops and pauses. The guard takes his chance but notices the sign: Please keep off the grass. Looking down at the Queen's faithful corgi, the guard has an idea. Stretching out across the lawn, Betsy in hand, just inches from the hat; the wind laughs and takes the hat off once more. Landing on top of a balloon, off it goes on another journey. Higher and higher, further and further it flies above the rooftops, heading towards Big Ben. Pop! The hat lands on the minute hand.
